SSN for me is much more than an academic institution. My time here has been truly transformative. Four years here not only gave me the experience of a lifetime but also a whole new perspective of life and has altered my worldview for the better.

One of the most remarkable aspects of the Civil engineering department is the freedom they provided and the constant encouragement to explore new avenues beyond academics to find my niche trait. This experience has been rich and pivotal in my further endeavours to leverage my multi faceted personality. I was given many leadership opportunities that helped me find my voice and build my own opinions. One such was the opportunity to lead the art and literary club KRACIVA, which nurtured my leadership and critical thinking skills and firsthand taught me the importance of teamwork, collaboration and initiative. This also gave me the opportunity to collaborate and connect with many successful alumni.

I must admit that the Civil engineering department's faculties were the friendliest and approachable people on the campus. They encouraged and guided me to explore my engineering interests beyond the scope of my undergraduate syllabus. This enabled me to pursue a tunnel design project in my final year (Design of Underground hangar), which I was so passionate about. In retrospect, I can affirm that this experience made me realise the importance of pursuing my passion no matter how hard and far it may seem.

SSN also gave me enriching opportunities, facilities and time to focus and further my Badminton career. I am grateful for having been the "Sports Captain- Second Year".

While I am incredibly grateful for the opportunities and experiences that SSN has provided me with, I am even more grateful for the community, friends and connections SSN gave me, which has made me the person I am today.
