Lake and Beach clean ups: Social Service Scheme student volunteers of our Institution were engaged continuously for the since 2010 in lake and beach clean up near our Campus. During the early hours of Saturdays or Sundays, at least once in a month we do clean ups in the community where people gathers. Also we properly dispose the waste to handing over to Waste segregation and usable unit of the Village and Town Panchayat office. 40 -50 volunteers used to participate in any clean ups. This activity is a profound reminder of por shared responsibility We did not leave behind a cleaner environment, we nurtured a deeper connection to our role in safe guarding it.

Since 2007, SSN has partnered with local charities and nonprofits to collect and distribute reusable items during move-in and move-out. Joy of giving week - an annual celebration in our Institution from Oct 2nd to 8th every year. This is a donation drive of collecting reusable items like clothes, shoes, utensils, Stationaries, books, etc. Students, employees are donated generously. Environmental sustainability took centre stage, urging the recyclable packaging. The finale featured a heart warming addition - an on site used bookstore by NGO Goonj, funding for education for underprivileged children.

- Description of and/or website URL for at least one student-managed enterprise that is sustainability-focused- (attendance log to shared as part of assessment)

The National Service Scheme (NSS) has been integrated as a student-managed enterprise within our institution, emphasizing sustainability and community engagement. The initiative focuses on instilling social responsibility, environmental awareness, and sustainable development practices among students.

Under the NSS framework, students participate in various activities that promote sustainability, such as environmental conservation projects, waste management campaigns, tree plantation drives, and awareness programs on clean energy. These initiatives not only benefit the community but also contribute to the students' learning and development, as they manage the planning, execution, and evaluation of these projects independently.

One such initiative has been the organization of "Green Campus Campaigns," where students collaborated with local communities to implement sustainable waste segregation practices and promote eco-friendly alternatives. The campaign also included workshops on sustainability, which were organized and led by students, reflecting their leadership in the initiative.

For accountability and assessment purposes, the attendance log is maintained and shared periodically, tracking participation and ensuring active involvement. The log serves as a critical tool in evaluating the effectiveness of the program and the students' commitment to sustainability-focused activities.

This student-led enterprise under NSS not only fosters personal growth but also aligns with the institution's broader goals of promoting sustainability, ensuring that students develop the skills and values necessary to contribute meaningfully to society.
