MEAN Stack 2025
National Workshop on
Demystifying MEAN Stack Development

About the Workshop

This workshop aims to provide a comprehensive overview of full-stack web application development, equipping participants with the essential skills required to build dynamic, scalable applications. It will cover both front-end and back-end development, ensuring a holistic understanding of the entire web development process. Additionally, the workshop will delve into the containerization of web applications, teaching learners how to streamline deployment and manage applications efficiently. This workshop is designed for aspiring full-stack developers who wish to gain hands-on experience in building modern, end-to-end web solutions and prepare for a successful career in web development.
